2. Access to journals \(print and electronic\) via TRiCAT

1. e-book search in the catalogue

By searching in the TRiCAT you can find printed books as well as e-books, which you can also access from home.

External access (VPN) set up and activated?
Help is available at: VPN access to the university network

First go to the online catalog TRiCAT and enter a search term or book title:

Go to the library website (<https://www.uni-trier.de/bibliothek>), then follow the link to TRiCAT.

To narrow the search results to e-books, you can select "Available Online" in the facets on the left side

2. Access to journals (printed and electronic) via TRiCAT

- From home: Connect to the university network! Best via VPN full tunnel. Access via VPN is only possible for university members.
- For installation please follow the instructions of the ZIMK:
- VPN access to the university network
- Access TRiCAT via the homepage of the university library first. In the "Catalog" you can only search for the journal title – you can't search for the contents of the journal and individual articles! This is only possible in a further step, provided that the journal is also available online in the library.

First go to the online catalogue TRiCAT and search for the journal title:

Go to the homepage of the university library (<https://www.uni-trier.de/bibliothek>) and follow the link to the TRiCAT

Enter the search term and click on the magnifying glass symbol

FLORENCE HAEGEL

Political Socialisation: Out of Purgatory?

Abstract

This paper aims to put contemporary political socialisation research in perspective. It offers a rapid overview of the crisis of the subfield after the 1970s and then shifts attention to post-crisis studies. Beginning with child political socialisation, it raises four issues: the use of theoretical frameworks derived from child psychology; the need to reconnect political socialisation to the sociology of family; the benefits of renewing methods for understanding the world of child politics; and a new account of social inequality in the process of political socialisation. It then explores lifelong political socialisation and how it has developed around four research dynamics: the study of civic and political socialisation of school-age adolescents and young adults; the generational renewal; the socialising effects of political mobilisation; and the processes and agents of the secondary political socialisation of adults. The final section raises the major question of what is political in political socialisation.

Keywords: Political socialisation; Family; Generation; Child and lifelong political socialisation.

FOR THOSE INTERESTED in the history of social science, political socialisation as a research field is a particularly compelling case. It flourished in the 1960s but rapidly collapsed, struck down by major critiques that precipitated its long purgatory. There are signs now that it may emerge from this, although one should not overestimate recovery, as a genuine subfield has not yet been clearly reconstituted.

The difficulty of assessing the state of the art is compounded by the fact that political socialisation used to be "a sub-field of American politics" [Sapiro 2004: 5]. Although the ethnocentrism of political socialisation research was criticised from the very beginning on the grounds that the topic was too limited to American society and that most of its conclusions were not generalisable, ethnocentrism remains a specific feature of political socialisation 60 years later, and few studies
