Master
International Economics and Public Policy
(IEPP)

Now, since politics uses the rest of the sciences, and since, again, it legislates as to what we are to do and what we are to abstain from, the end of this science must include those of the others, so that this end must be the good for man.”
Aristotle (NE, 2)
The Master program MA IEPP is designed for students in Political Science, Social Sciences and Economics who are interested in an interdisciplinary analysis of the interplay between politics and economics in an international context. Taking this interdependence seriously, the programme investigates effective and legitimate ways of governance and economic development in the 21st century. Graduates are prepared for career paths in the public and private sectors. The research orientation of the program also qualifies students for a PhD programme.

EDUCATIONAL ORGANISATION

The Master program “International Economics and Public Policy” is a two-year full-time programme consisting of 10 modules taught in English. In their first semester, students attend the following three modules: “Economics” (lectures on advanced micro- and macroeconomics), “Econometrics” and “Economic Policy-Making”. In the second and third semester, students attend modules in “Economic Governance in Europe”, “Economic Policies”, “Global Governance”, “International Economics”, “Energy, Climate and Environment” and “East Asian Political Economy”. In the fourth semester, students complete the programme with their Master thesis.

Course content:
The Master program “International Economics and Public Policy” is an interdisciplinary program jointly run by the Political Science and Economics Departments of the University of Trier. The program combines application and research oriented courses. Students are trained to get an in-depth understanding of current topics and research in comparative and international political economy by using qualitative and quantitative advanced social science research methods. Students can choose among a wide range of topics related to e.g. problems of international economics, governance of the European Union or current developments in Asia.
