

Trier University conducts socially important research and teaching at the cutting edge, focusing strongly on digitalization, interdisciplinarity, and diversity. Our research emphasis is on people and their relationships with society, law, the economy, and the environment. Currently, with around 10,000 students and approximately 2,000 employees, Trier University ranks among the largest employers in the European border region of Trier. Short distances on a green campus, a vibrant academic life, and an open-minded working culture provide numerous opportunities for implementing groundbreaking research projects and contemporary teaching.

The following position is available in Faculty V - Law at the University of Trier as of October 1, 2025:

W1 Professorship for Civil Law, Labor Law and Law of the Digital Labor Society with tenure track according to W3 (m/f/d)

This junior professorship is aimed at young scientists in the early stages of their careers, possessing extraordinary potential for further advancement in science.

The future holder of the position represent civil law and labour law in its entirety in research and teaching, including its references to the law of the digital working society. The candidate is expected to contribute to legal education at the department, particularly in the university's focus area (focus area 3: labour and social law), and to cooperate with the department's institutes in this area (IAAEU, IRDT). A willingness to acquire third-party funding is a prerequisite. The ability to hold lectures in English or French, in addition to the basic courses in German, is an advantage. A willingness to participate in existing or future Bachelor's, Magister, or Master's degree programs in the department is desirable.

The official duties arise from § 48 of the Higher Education Act of Rhineland- Palatinate (HochSchG). The requirements for employment stem from § 54 HochSchG.

According to Sections 54 and 55 of the HochSchG, junior professorships are generally filled for a period of six years. An evaluation of an orientational nature regarding the level of performance in teaching, research, or art takes place at the earliest after the third year of employment and at the latest before the end of the fourth year of employment. Following the period of the junior professorship, a permanent transfer of the aforementioned professorship (Bes.Gr. W3 LBesG) is planned if the holder of the position has proven himself or herself in accordance with the relevant university law regulations (evaluation procedures) and meets the general service law and personal requirements. Reference is made to Section 50, Paragraph 5, Sentence 6 of the HochSchG in this context.

The State of Rhineland-Palatinate and the University of Trier are committed to intensive personal mentoring for students and, therefore, expect a strong presence of teaching staff at the University. Trier University aims to increase the proportion of female professors and strongly encourages female academics to apply. Severely disabled persons and those treated as equals in accordance with § 2 Para. 3 SGB IX will be given preferential consideration if they are suitable (please enclose proof).
